

KLATAR THE GREAT AKA EDWARD DRAKUL

HOUSE DRACUL

DRAKUL FAMILY

At an early age you were identified as being psychically gifted; your father Otto attempted to use your psychic talent of Clairvoyance to gain leverage against the other Atlantean Houses. This did not end well and your father ended up "accidentally" falling off of the 20 story skyscraper in downtown New York when you were about 15 years old. From that day forward you decided that you would not end up with the same fate, so when you were old enough to leave home, you hit the road and joined the retinue of traveling psychic show. For years you looked into the future and the past looking for answers to other peoples' questions and problems. About 10 years ago you were approached by a beautiful woman by the name of Dominique; she told you that she knew your father and that if you wanted to avoid suffering his fate, you would agree to work for her employer. Given the bloody smear that your father became on a New York City street, to quietly agreed to work for Mr. Ramirez. For almost 10 years now, you have been traveling from city to city in the United States having meetings with high ranking members of the Second Atlantean Empire. Dominique tells you to use your psychic gift to dig into the past to uncover any skeletons that might be hiding in their closets; anything incriminating that you might find you record your experience to a digital voice recorder and send the recording on to Dominique who obviously sends it to Mr. Ramirez. Not all of your visions have been totally accurate though, and that worries you. Late last week you received a letter from Mr. Ramirez telling you to make your way to the city of Arkham for a gathering of Atlanteans at the Metal Church of Asmodeus. You have this bad feeling that something is going to happen to you if you go to this gathering, but if you don't, you are totally sure that Mr. Ramirez will have you killed. With no real connections to your House of birth, House Dracul, you are on your own on this one.
